Harmony with land is like harmony with a friend; you cannot cherish his right hand and chop off his left. That is to say, you cannot love game and hate predators; you cannot conserve the waters and waste the ranges; you cannot build the forest and mine the farm. The land is one organism.

The National Wildlife Refuge System is a collection of public lands and waters established or acquired in 1903 when the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service was created. Today, the system includes 110 national wildlife refuges in 32 states and the District of Columbia. The system also includes 3 national marine sanctuaries, 1 national estuarine reserve, and 1 national wetlands reserve. The system is managed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which is part of the U.S. Department of the Interior. The system is the largest and most diverse system of public lands in the United States.
